Real-Time Global Intelligence

Chat Assistant Testing Question Bank

A practical benchmark for live information retrieval, reasoning, source verification, and multi-turn conversation.

Purpose	Use these prompts to evaluate whether an assistant can retrieve current global information, reason across events, cite credible sources, and handle uncertainty.
Recommended test window	Run time-sensitive prompts during testing and record the exact date, time, and timezone of each test.
Important	A good assistant should distinguish event time from publication time, cite sources, flag unconfirmed claims, and say when live data is unavailable.

How to use this question bank

1. Run each prompt against your assistant with live search enabled.
2. Save the response, sources, retrieval timestamp, and model/tool configuration.
3. Re-run selected prompts later to check whether the assistant detects new developments.
4. Use the conversation sequences and scorecard near the end to test memory and reliability.

13. Evaluation scorecard

Criterion	What to evaluate	Score (0–5)
Freshness	Information is current and appropriate to the requested time window.
Accuracy	Claims are factually correct and not fabricated.
Source quality	Sources are credible, relevant, and independently attributable.
Timestamp discipline	Event time, publication time, and retrieval time are distinguished.
Context retention	Follow-up questions correctly use prior conversation context.
Reasoning	Explains causes, implications, and relationships without overclaiming.
Completeness	Answers every part of the question.
Uncertainty	Separates confirmed facts, claims, opinions, and predictions.
Presentation	Answer is readable, structured, and appropriately concise.
Resilience	Admits missing live data and handles conflicting sources responsibly.

Suggested interpretation: 0 = failed or absent; 1 = major issues; 2 = partially correct; 3 = acceptable; 4 = strong; 5 = excellent and well-supported.

10. Prepare a global situation briefing with confirmed facts, source links, timestamps, risks, and possible future scenarios.

Benchmark design note

For repeatable evaluation, store each prompt with the test timestamp, timezone, expected source types, retrieved URLs, response text, and reviewer score. Avoid hard-coding a single expected answer for fast-changing events; evaluate evidence quality, freshness, and reasoning instead.
